

Glenda WORLEY FAPS PSQA

I'm a late starter in the art of photography. I first became interested after visiting Egypt in 2009 when my point and shoot became more of a point and hope as in a lot of cases, all I could see in the LCD screen was a reflection of me. I decided to buy a camera with a viewfinder. DSLRs scared me so I started with a bridge camera but in 2011 purchased my first DSLR. A steep learning curve followed. Primarily self taught, I am now a keen amateur photographer and enjoy shooting many different genres. My favourites would be travel, scapes, action and nature.

I joined the Gladstone Camera Club when it was formed in late 2011 and later the Rockhampton Photography Club as they offered more on the educational side. I enjoy entering competitions both at the club level and international and have recently obtained FAPS by exhibition through the Australian Photographic Society. I continue to try and improve my photography and enjoy learning new techniques both for capture and digital processing.
